The Case of Vallandigham.

We do not believe we overrate the importance of the opinion of Judge Leavitt. The judge is far removed from politics. He has occupied his present position for many years, and may be considered as completely divested of partizan feeling as that on account of his position, his reasonings and conclusions should be heeded by sthe people, and have their due influence.

There is a remarkable contrast between the tone of this document and the writings and speeches of the Vallandigham school of politicians. It is pervaded by a glowing patriotism that is generously willing to acgood power enough to the military arm of the government to save the nation. The Judge is not sfraid of yielding too much, but is ready to concede enough for the purpose, while his trust in the intelligence of the people is so great that he feels confident that they will not allow it to be exer-"cised a moment longer than is necessary to put down the rebellion. The power which he recognizes as being lawfully and constitutionally in the hands of the President and his generals is very great, but it is necessary to save the constitution, and that is what makes it constitutional. He the People.

It is true, that Ru-pert was a man in humble position—unknown beyond the narrow circle in which he moved, while the present petitioner has a wide-spread forme as a prominent politician and statesman. -CORPUS CASE.

I might with entire confidence place the grounds of action I propose in the present case, upon the decision of the learned judge in that just referred to. Even if I entertained doubts of the soundness of his views, I see no principle on which I could be justified in treating the opinion as void of authority. But the counsel of Mr. Vallandig-ham was not restricted in the argument of this motion to this point. It seemed due to him that the court should hear what could be urged against the legality of the arrest, and in favor of the interposition of the court in behalf of the petitioner. And I have been greatly interested in the forcible argument which has been submitted, though unable to concur with the speaker in all his conclusions. If it were my desire to do so, I have not now the physical strength to notice or discuss at length the grounds on which the learned counsel has attempted to prove the illegality of General Burnside's order for the arrest of Mr. Vallandigham, and the daty of the court to grant the writ applied for. The basis of the whole argument is the fact that Mr. Vallandigham, not being any man can be. He, therefore, is able to in the military or naval service of the govweigh the important questions presented ernment, and not therefore, subject to the with great impartiality. It seems to us rules and articles of war, was not liable to arrest under or by military power. It is hardly necessary to quote these excellent guarantees of the rights and defend. And in deciding what he may and liberties of an American citizen, as lightfully do under this power, where there they are familiar to every reader of the constitution. And it may be conceded that if by a just construction of the constitutional powers of the government, in the colemn emergency now existing, they are applicable to, and must control the question of the legality of the arrest of the petitioner, it cannot be sustained for the obvious reason that no warrant was issued upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation," as is required in ordinary arrests for alleged crimes. But are there not other considerations of a controlling character applicable to the question? Is not the court imperatively bound to regard the present state of the country, and, in the light which it throws upon the subject, to decide upon the expediency of interfering with the exercise of the military power is willing to confide in the President and The court cannot shut its eyes to the grave fact that war exists, involving the most The Vallandingham politicians, on the imminent public danger, and threatening contrary, forget the country in their allegi- the subversion and destruction of the conance to party. If this view of the power of the President is correct, it undoubtedly implies the right to arrest porsons, who, by their mischievous acts of disloyalty, impeds, or endanger the military operations of the government. And, if the necessity exists, I see no reason why the power does not attach to the officer or general in command of a military department. The only reason why the appointment is made, is that the President cannot discharge the duties in person. He had nobly laid his party preferences and predilections upon the alter of his country, and consethat the widely extended department, with the military supervision of which he was charged, was one of great importance, and demanded great vigilance and ability in the administration of its military concerns. Kentucky was a bord state, in which there was a large element of d saffection toward the national government, and sympathy with those in rebellion against it. Formidable invasions have been attempted, and are now threatened. Four of the states have a river border, and are in perpetual danger of invasion. In Ohio, Indiana and Illinois a class of mischievous politicians had succeeded in poisoning the minds of a portion of the community with the rankost feeling of disloyalty. Artful politicians, disquising their latent treason under the hollow pretensions of devotion to the Untilent heresies among the masses of the people. The evil was one of alarming magnitude, and threatened seriously to imnede the military operations of the government, and greatly to protract the suppression of the rebellion. General Burnside was not slow to perceive the dangerous consequences of these disloyal efforts, and resolved, if possible, to suppress them. In the exercise of his discretion, he issued the order-No. 38-which has been brought to the notice of this court. I shall not comment on that order, or say any diency. I refer to it because Gen. I have no fears that the recognition of this doctrine will lead to an arbitrary invasion of the personal security, or personal liberty of the citizen. It is rare indeed that a charge of disloyalty will be made upon insufficient grounds. But if there should be an occasional mistake, auch an occurrence is not to be put in competition with the preservation of the ife of the nation. And I confess, I am but ittle moved by the eloquent appeals of hose who, while they indignantly denounce violations of personal liberty, look with no horror upon a despotism as unmitigated am aware there are points made by the earned counsel representing Mr. Vallanligham, to which I have not adverted. I have had neither time nor strength for a more elaborate consideration of the question involved in this application. For the reasons which I have now attempted to set forth, I am led clearly to the conclusion that I can not judicially pronounce the order of General Burnside for the arrest of Mr. Vallandigham as a nullity, and must, therefore, hold that no sufficient ground has been exhibited for granting the writ applied for. And I may properly add here, that I am fortified in my conclusion by the fact just brought to my notice, that the legielature of Obio, at its last session, has passed two statutes, in which the validity and legality of arrests in this state under military authority are distinctly sanctioned. This is a clear indication of the opinion of that body that the rights and liberties of the people are not put in jeopardy by the matter of uncertainty. exercise of the power in question, and is, moreover, a concession that the present state of the country requires and justifies ts exercise. It is a clear intimation that: he people of our patriotic state will sanction such a construction of the constitution as, without a clear violation of its letter, will adapt it to the existing emergency.

There is one other consideration to which may, perhaps, properly refer, not as a reason for refueing the writ applied for, but for the purpose of saying that, if granted, there is no probability that it would be available in relieving Mr. Vallandigham from his present position. It is, at least, morally certain it would not be obeyed. And I confess I am somewhat reluctant to authorize a process, knowing it would not be respected, and that the court is power less to enforce obedience. Yet, if satisfied there were sufficient grounds for the allowance of the writ, the consideration to which I have adverted would not be conclusive

Mr. Pugh then drew up an entry, to be made upon the records, which Judge Leavitt accepted, and ordered to be spread upon the minutes. The court then adjourned.

From the Cincinnati Gazette, of Monday. habeas corpus. The tollowing is the decision of the court:

tion of Clement L. Vallandigham, a citi-sen of Ohio, alleging that he was unlaw-fully arrested at home in Dayton, in this state on the night of the 5th of May, inst., by a detachment of soldiers of the army of of Ambrose E. Buruside, a major general in the army of the United States, and brought against his will, to the city of Cincinnati, where he has been subjected to EASTERN WORK, in endless variety. I am also manufacturing to mea ladies, misses and children, and at prices that will suit. My United States, and has not been called into setive service in the militia of any state; and that his arrest, detention and trial, as set forth in his petition are illegal, and in violation of the constitution of the United States. The prayer is, that a writ of habeas corpus may issue requiring General Burnside to produce the body of the petitioner before this court, with the cause of his capture and detention. Accompany ng the petition is a statement of the charges or specifications on which he alleges he was tried before the military comnission. For the purpose of this decision it is not necessary to notice these charges specially, but it may be stated in brief that they impute to the petitioner the atterance of sundry disloyal opinions and statements, in a public speech at Mount Vernon, in the state of Ohio, on the first of May inst., with the knowledge "that they did aid and comfort and encourage those in arms

It is proper to remark here, that on the

the petition was presented, the court made a distinct reference to the decision of this court in the case of Bethuel Rupert, at October term, 1862, before noticed, as an authoritative precedent for its action on this application: On full reflection, I do not see how it is possible for me, string alone in the circuit court, to ignore the decision, made upon full consideration by Justice Swayne, with the concurrence of myself, and which, as referrable to all cases involv ing the same principle, must be regarded as the law of this court until reversed by a higher court. The case of Rupert was substantially the same as that of the present petitioner. He set out in his petition what he alleged to be an unlawful arrest by the order of a military officer, on a charge imputing to him disloyalty to the government, and sympathy with the rebellion against it, and an unlawful detention and imprisonment as the result of such order. The application, however, in the case of Rupert, differed from the one now before the court, in this, that affidavits were exhibited intended to disprove the charge of disloyal conduct imputed to him; and also in this, that there was no pretense or showing by Rupert that there had been any investigation or trial by any court of the charges The petition in this case is addressed to the judges of the circuit court, and not to a single judge of that court. It occurs from the absence of Mr. Justice Swayne that the the absence of Mr. Justice Swayne that the district judge is now holding the circuit court, as he is authorized to do by law. But thus sitting, would it not be in violation of all settled rules of judicial practice, as well as of courtesy, for the district judge to reverse a decision of the circuit court, and when both judges were on the banel? made when both judges were on the bench? It is well known that the district judge, though authorized to sit with the circuit judge in the circuit court, does not occupy

VALLANDIGHAM HABEAS corpus case.

BEFORE JUDGE LEAVITT. The Circuit Court Declines to Issue the Writ.

OPINION OF THE JUDGE IN FULL.

From the Cincinnati Gizette, of Monday. At ten o'clock on Saturday morning the circuit court room was crowded to hear the decision of Judge Leavitt on the application of C. L. Vallaudigham for a writ of habeas corpus. The following is the decision of the court: Ex Parte C. L. Vallandiaham Habeas

This case is before the court on the petition of Clement L. Vallandigham, a citisen of Ohio, alleging that he was unlaw. panic, fully arrested at home in Dayton, in this state on the night of the 5th of May, inst., by a detachment of soldiers of the army of the United States, acting under the orders of Ambrose E. Burnside, a major general in the army of the United States, and brought against his will, to the city of Cincinnati, where he has been subjected to Cincinnati, where he has been subjected to a trial before a military commission, and is still retained in custody, and restrained of the purchase of one of which would Gobble up the rubis liberty. The petitioner also avers that the resources of many of the so-called Merchants who he is not in the land or naval service of the United States, and has not been called into active service in the militia of any state; and that his arrest, detention and trial, as set forth in his petition are illegal, and in Violation of the constitution of the United States. The prayer is, that a writ of ha in proof of which we offer the following: beas corpus may issue requiring General Burnside to produce the body of the petitioner before this court, with the cause of his capture and detention. Accompanying the petition is a statement of the ng the petition is a statement of the charges or specifications on which he al. 200 Ps Fine French Organdies at 25c per yd leges he was tried before the military commission. For the purpose of this decision it is not necessary to notice these charges in New York at 44c per yard. None of the above with specially, but it may be stated in brief that they impute to the petitioner the utterance of sundry disloyal opinions and statements, that we still in a public speech at Mount Vernon, in the state of Onio, on the first of May inst., with the knowledge "that they did aid and comfort and eucourage those in arms against the government, and could but in-the laws of the land." The petitioner does not state what the judgement of the military commission is, nor is the court informed whether be has been condemned or acuitted on the charges exhibited

It is proper to remark here, that on the presentation of the petition the court stated to the counsel for Mr. Vallandigham that, according to the usages of the court, as well as other courts of high authority, the writ was not grantable of course, and ing that it ought to issue. The court is entirely satisfied of the correctness of the course thus indicated. The subject was fully examined by the learned Justice for spring and summer wear is full and well assorted. Swayne, when present, the presiding judge of this court, on a petition for a habeas corpus, presented at the last October term; a case to which further reference will be presently made. I shall now only note the authorities on this point, which seem to be entirely conclusive. Peters 201, Cushing, R. 285. Hurd on habeas corpus, 222, 3, 4. In pursuance of this ruling, an order was made by the court that notice be given to General Burnside, of the pendency in the court of the application for the writ, to the end that he might appear by counsel or otherwise to oppose the granting of the writ. per yard. That distinguished general has accordingly presented a respectful communication to the court, stating generally and argumentatively the reasons of the arrest of Mr. Vallandigham, and has also authorized able counsel to represent him in resistance of the application for the writ. And the

On full reflection, I do not see how it is possible for me, sitting alone in the circuit court, to ignore the decision, made upon full consideration by Justice Swayne, with the concurrence of myself, and which, as referrable to all cases involving the same principle, must be regarded as the law of this court until reversed by a higher court. The case of Rupert was substantially the same as that of the present petitioner. He set out in his petition what he alleged to be an unlawful arrest by the MORE NEW GOODS! higher court. The case of Rupert was suborder of a military officer, on a charge imputing to him disloyalty to the government, and sympathy with the rebellion against it, and an unlawful detention and imprisonment as the result of such order. The application, however, in the case of Rupert, differed from the one now before the court, in this, that affidavita were exhibited intended to disprove the charge of disloyal conduct imputed to him; and also in this, that there was no pretense or showing by Rupert that there had been any investigation or trial by any court of the charges

The petition in this case is addressed to the judges of the circuit court, and not to a single judge of that court. It occurs from the absence of Mr. Justice Swayne that the district judge is now holding the circuit court, as he is authorized to do by law. But thus sitting, would it not be in violation of all settled rules of judicial practice, as well as of courtesy, for the district judge to reverse a decision of the circuit court, made when both judges were on the bench? P. S.—Remember that Sutherland has a larger stock It is well known that the district judge, though authorized to sit with the circuit judge in the circuit court, does not occupy the same official position, and that the latter judge when present is, ex officio, the presiding judge. It is obvious that confusion and uncertainty, greatly impairing the respect due to the adjudications of the circuit courts of the United States. would result from the assumption of such an exeroise of power by the district judge. It would not only be disrespectful to the superior judge, but would evince in the dis-

The Case of Vallandigham.

We do not believe we overrate the importance of the opinion of Judge Leavitt. The judge is far removed from politics. He has occupied his present position for many years, and may be considered as completely divested of partizan feeling as weigh the important questions presented with great impartiality. It seems to us that on account of his position, his reasonings and conclusions should be heeded by the people, and have their due influence.

There is a remarkable contrast between the tone of this document and the writings and speeches of the Vallandigham school these excellent guarantees of the rights of politicians. It is prevaded by a glowing and liberties of an American citizen, as patriotism that is generously willing to accord power enough to the military arm of the government to save the nation. The Judge is not afraid of yielding too much, but is ready to concede enough for the purpose, while his trust in the intelligence of the people is so great that he feels confident that they will not allow it to be exercised a moment longer than is necessary to put down the rebellion. The power which he recognizes as being lawfully and character applicable to the question? Is dent and his generals is very great, but it

There is no fear that we shall lose our liberties by the usurpations of presidents or generals; the people would not permit it; the army, which is comprised of our most enlightened citizens, would not allow it; thus knowing our rights and judging correctly of the extent it is necessary to delegate military power in this emergency, the people can afford to be trustful and generous.

But the leaders of the democratic party, not having this confidence in the peoplethis new people, different in intellect and any state the civil authorities of the Union quickness of perception from any other, and therefore not to be judged by historical parallels drawn from the past-these old the emergency. So, instead of fighting the rebels who mean to overturn the government, they occupy their time in bewailing our unfortunate situation, denouncing arbitrary arrests, declaiming against fancied violations of the constitution, and inculcating treasenable sentiments in the army and among the people. Their remedy is peace and submission to the rebels, and while they have a pretended horror of "Lincoln's tyranny," they rush voluntarily into the wicked and diabolical despotism of Jeff. Davis.

(Confinued from 1st page.) That the detention or imprisonment was under military authority. It is true, that Ru-pert was a man in humble position—un-known beyond the narrow circle in which he moved; while the present petitioner has a wide spread fates as a prominent politi-cian and statesman. But no one will insist that there should be any difference in the against him of admitted intelligence and distinguished taients.

I might with entire confidence place the grounds of action I propose in the present case, upon the decision of the learned judge in that just referred to. Even if I entertained doubts of the soundness of his views. I see no principie on which I could be justified in treating the opinion as void of authority. But the counsel of Mr. Vallandigham was not restricted in the argument of this motion to this point. It seemed due to him that the court should hear what could be urged against the legality of the arrest, and in favor of the interposition of the court in behalf of the petitioner. And I have been greatly interested in the forci-ble argument which has been submitted, though unable to concur with the speaker in all his conclusions. If it were my desire to do so, I have not now the physical strength to notice or dis cuss at length the grounds on which the learned counsel has attempted to prove the illegality of General Burnside's order for the arrest of Mr. Vallandigham, and the duty of the court to grant the writ applied for. The basis of the whole argument is completely divested of partizan feeling as the fact that Mr. Vallandigham, not being any man can be. He, therefore, is able to in the military or naval service of the government, and not therefore, subject to the rules and articles of war, was not liable to arrest under or by military power. And the various provisions of the constitution, intended to guard the citizen against unlawful arrests and imprisonments, have been cited and urged upon the attention of the court as having a direct bearing on the point. It is hardly necessary to quote they are familiar to every reader of the constitution. And it may be conceded that if, by a just construction of the constitutional powers of the government, in the solemn emergency now existing, they are applicable to, and must control the question of the legality of the arrest of the petitioner, it cannot be sustained for the obvious reason that no warrant was issued "upon probable cause; supported by oath or affirmation," as is required in ordinary arrests for alleged crimes. But are there not other considerations of a controlling constitutionally in the hands of the Presi not the court imperatively bound to regard the present state of the country, and, in the light which it throws upon the subject, is necessary to save the constitution, and to decide upon the expediency of interfer-that is what makes it constitutional. They were aware that the grant of these powers implied all other powers necessary to give them full effect. They also declared that the presi-dent of the United States "shall be commander-in-chief of the army and navy, and of the militia of the several states when called into actual service," and they placed upon him the solemn obligation "to take care that the laws be faithfully executed.' Under this last named provision, and in reference to a local rebellion, in which the laws of the Union were obstructed, the act of the 28th of February, 1795, was passed, providing, in substance, that whenever in were unable to enforce the laws, the president shall be empowered to call out such military force as might be necessary for states of the Union repudiated their allegiance to the national government, and placed themselves in armed rebellion against terms to meet such an occurrence, although it was not a case within the contemplation of congress when the law was enacted. If the theory of his counsel is sustainable, that there can be no legal arrest except by warrant based on an attidsvit of probable pying this narrow base. Gen. Burnside. by order of the President, has been designated and appointed to take the military supervision of the department of the Ohio, composed of the states of Kentucky, Ohio, Indians, Illinois and Michigan. The precise extent of his authority in this responsible position is not known to the court. It may, however, be properly assumed as a-fair presumption, that the President has clothed him in all the powers necessary to the efficient discharge of his duties in the station to which he has been called. He is the representative and agent of the President, within the limits of his department. presely from the provision of that instruer in-chief of the army and navy. The conatitution does not specify the may rightfully exercise in this character, nor are they defined by legislation. No one denies, however, that the President, in this character, is invested with very high powers, which it is well known have been exercised on various occasions during the present rebellion. A memorable instance of its exercise is seen in the emancipation proclamation issued by the President as commander-in-chief, and which he instifies as a military necessity. It is, perhaps, not easy to define what acts are properly within this designation, but they must undoubtedly be limited to such as are deemed essential to the protection and preservation of the government and the constitution, which the President has sworn to support and defend. And in deciding what he may rightfully do under this power, where there is no express legislative declaration, the President is guided solely by his own judgment and discretion, and is only amendable for an abuse of his authority by impeachment, presecuted according to the resion which calls for the exercise of this power exists only from the necessity of the case; and when the necessity exists, there is a clear justification of the act.

If this view of the power of the President is correct, it undoubtedly implies the right to arrest persons, who, by their mischievous acts of disloyalty, impede or endanger the military operations of the government, And, if the necessity exists, I see no reason why the power does not attach to the officer or general in command of a military department. The only reason why the appointment is made, is that the President cannot discharge the duties in person. He, therefore, constitutes an agent to represent im, clothed with the necessary power for the efficient supervision of the military interests of the government throughout the department. And it is not necessary that martial law should be proclaimed or exist, to enable the general in command to perform the duties assigned to him. Martial law is well defined by an able jurist to be the will of a military commander operating without any restraint, save his judg-ment, upon the lives, upon the persons, upon the entire social and individual condition of all over whom this law extends." It cannot be claimed that this law was in operation in General Burnside's department, when Mr. Vallandigham was arrested. Nor is it necessary that it should have been in force to justify the arrest. The power vested by virtue of the authority was conferred by the appointment of the Presidert. Under that appointment General Burnside assumed the command of this department, That he was a man eminently fitted for the position, there is no room for a doubt. He had schieved during his brief national career a national reputation as a wise, discreet, patriotic and brave general. He not only enjoyed the confidence and re-

that the widely extended department, with the military supervision of which he was charged, was one of great importance, and demanded great vigilance and ability in the administration of its military concerns. Kentucky was a bord state, in which there was a large element of d saffection toward the national government, and sympathy with those in rebellion against it. Formidable invasions have been attempted, and are now threatened. Four of the states have a river border, and are in perpetual danger of invasion. In Ohio, Indiana and had succeeded in poisoning the minds of a portion of the community with the rankest feeling of disloyalty. Artful politicians, disguising their latent treason under the hollow pretensions of devotion to the Union, were striving to disseminate their pestilent heresies among the masses of the people. The evil was one of alarming magnitude, and threatened seriously to impede the military operations of the govern-ment, and greatly to protract the suppres-

sequences of these disloyal efforts, and resolved, if possible, to suppress them. In the exercise of his discretion, he is sued the order-No. 38-which has been brought to the notice of this court. I shall not comment on that order, or say anyanything more in vindication of its expe diency. I refer to it because Gen. Burn-side, in his manly and patriotic communi eation to the court, has stated fully his mo tives and reasons for issuing it, and also that it was for its supposed violation that he ordered the arrest of Vallandigham.— He has done this under his responsibility as the commanding general of this depart-ment, and in accordance with what he supposed to be the power vested in him by the appointment of the President. It was virtually the act of the executive department dued. The energies of the loyal people under the power vested in the President

But I do not think But under our constitution, which studi-I am bound to regard the inquiry as occas ovaly seeks to keep the executive, legislative and judicial departments of the government from all interferference and conflict with each other, it would be an unwarrantable exercise of the judicial power to decide that a co-ordinate branch of the government, acting under its high responsibilties, had violated the constitution, in its letter or its spirit, by authorizing the arrest in question. Especially in these troublous times, when the national life is in peril, and when union and harmony among the different branches of the government are so imperatively demanded, such interference would find no excuse or vindication. If the doctrine is to obtain, that every one In time of war, the President is not above charged with and guilty of acts of mischiev-the constitution, but derives his power excriminal laws of the land, in custody under ment, declaring that he shall be command- military authority, is to be set free by courts or judges on habeas corpus, it requires no argument to prove that the most alarming conflicts must follow, and the power of the government be most seriously impaired. I dare not, in my judicial position, assume the fearful responsibility implied in the eauction of such a doctrine. And here, without subjecting myself to the charge of trenching upon the domain of political discussion, I may be indulged in the remark that there is too much of the pestilential leaven of disloyalty in the community. There is a class of men in the loyal states who seem to have no just appreciation of those who are in arms avowedly for the overthrow of the government, and the establishment of a southern confederacy. They have not, I fear, risen to any right estimate of their duties and obligations, as American citizens, to a government, which has strown its blessings with a profuse hand. I may venture the assertion that the page of history will be searched in vain for an example of a re-bellion so wholly destitute of excuse or vindication, and so dark with crime, as that which our bleeding country is now called upon to confront, and for the suppression of which all her energies are demanded. Its cause is to be found in the unhallowed ambition of political aspirants and agitators, who boldly avow their aim, not the establishment of a government for the better security of human rights, but one in which all political power is to be concentrated in an odious and despotic oligarchy. It is indeed consolatory to know that in most sections of the forth, those who sympathize with the rebellion, are not so numerous and formidable as the apprehensions of some would seem to indicate. It may be assumed, I trust, that in most of the northern states, reliable and unswerving patrictism is the rule, and disloyalty and treason the exception. But there should be no division of sentiment upon this momentous question. Men should know, and lay the truth to their heart, that there is a course of conduct not involving overt treason, and not therefore subject to punishment as such, which nevertheless implies moral guilt and a gross offense aginst their country. Those who live under the protection and enjoy the protection of our benignant government, must learn that they cannot stab its vitals with impunity. If they cherish hatred and hostility to it, and desire its subversion, let them withdraw from its jurisdiction, and seek the aw of self-preservation prescribes and will enforce. And let them not complain, if but our troops were ready for all emergen the stringent doctrine of military necessity should find them to be the legitimate subject of its action. I have no fears that the recognition of this doctrine will lead to an arbitrary invasion of the personal security, or personal liberty of the citizen. It is

But I can not pursue this subject further. have had neither time nor strength for a enforcement is optional with him. more elaborate consideration of the question involved in this application. It is a clear intimation that the people of our patriotic state will sanction such a construction of the constitution as, without a clear violation of its letter, will adapt it to the existing emergency.

There is one other consideration to which I may, perhaps, properly refer, not as a very heavy, reason for refueing the writ applied for, but for the purpose of saying that, if granted, there is no probability that it would be available in relieving Mr. Vallandigham from his present position. It is, at least, morally certain it would not be obeyed. And I confess I am somewhat reluctant to authorize a process, knowing it would not be respected, and that the court is power ess to enforce obedience. Yet, if satisfied there were sufficient grounds for the allowance of the writ, the consideration to which have adverted would not be conclusive against it. Mr. Pugh then drew up an entry, to be nade upon the records, which Judge Leavitt accepted, and ordered to be spread up on the minutes. The court then adjourned.

We have a very high estimate, of the medical skill, the candor and honesty of Doctor Price the Analytic physician. He has acquired a high reputation in the treatment of long standing diseases, believes in assisting nature instead of retarding her ef-forts by harsh, and depletive medicine.— Dr. Price is the only physician in his speciality who had been persovering and for any length of time successful. This delightful article for preserving and beautifying the human hair is again put up by the original proprietor, and is now made with the same care, skill and attention, which first created its immense and unprecedented sales of over one million bottles annually? It is still sold at 25 cents in large bottles. Two million bottles can easily be sold in a year when it is again known that the Kathalren is not only the most deligatful hair dressing in the world, but that it cleanese the accip of sourf and dandruff, gives the hair a livrily rich inxuriant growth, and prevents it: from turning gray. These are considerations worth knowing. The Kathairon has been tested for ever twelve years, and is warranted as described. Any lady who walues a beautiful head of hair will use the Kathairon. It is finely perfumed, cheep and valuable. It is sold by all respectable dealers throughout the world.

We have a very high estimate of the medical skill, the candor and honesty of Doctor Price the Analytic physician. He has acquired a high reputation in the treatment of long standing diseases, believes in assisting nature instead of retarding her efforts by hersh and depletive medicine. Lyon's Kathairon.

This delightful article for preserving and beautifying the brimon bair is again put up by the original proprietor, and is now made with the same care, skill and attention, which first created it; immense and unprecedited sales of over one million bottles annually. It is still sold at 25 cents in large bottles. Two million bottles can easily be sold in a year when it is again known that the Eathairen is not only the most delightful sair dressing in the world, but that it cleanses the scale of sour's and daring, gives the hair allysiy rich luxuriant growth, and prevents it from turning gray. These are considerations worth knowing. The Kathairon has been tested for over twelve years, and is warranted as described. Any lady who values a beautiful head of hair will see the Kathairon. It is finely perfumed, cheap and valuable. It is sold by all respectable dealers throughout the world.

Chicago Market. OFFICE OF THE CHICAGO EVENING JOURNAL, TURNOLF, May 19-0 p. m. }
A reaction took place in the New York stock market to-day, and "fancies" declined 8a8 per cent, It surprised none, as financiers generally predicted s ollapse after such a rapid advance. Gold is neglected and has apparently given place to stocks. It is quoted to day at 148%—a decline of 1% per cent since yes terday. There is none offering here, and the rate is ominal at 148. Silver roles quiet at 134a138. Cans da money commands a premium of 44 per cent, and da money commands a prominant of 27,03 per Indiana and Kentucky fluids a premium of 27,03 per cent. There is a good inquiry for eastern exchange, and rates are firm at par ali per cent buying and 1/4 per cent selling. Money is in good supply and limited lemand at 10 per cent per annum, The decline in gold rendered the markets dull at the opening, and prices ruled lower; but the advices from opening; and prices rises tower; out the surfices from New York being more favorable than was expected, there was a better feeling towards the close, and the market recovered somewhat.

The demand for wheat was entirely speculative, and prices fell off to per husbel on No 1 spring, with sales $1,14a1,16. No 2 spring was quiet at 93a96c. There was little or no inquiry for flour, and the market rulled dull and heavy.

Corn was less active and declined about 1/c per bush el, with sales of mixed at 48a451/c and of rejected at 46a47c in store. There was but a limited inquiry for oats and the market ruled quiet at yesterday's decline. About 30,000 bushels changed hands at 531/464c, and a lot of favorite warehouse at 5116. Rye in store was neglected and dult, and sales were confined to few lots in bags on track to distillers at 75c.

Barley was active and nominal. Seeds dull.

Groceries firm and steady. Carbon oil, firm with an advancing tendency. Lake fish scarce and firm. Green apples in limited supply. Dried fruit steady. There is a good inquiry for prime to choice beeve and prices are firm at $5,00a5,60; medium grades range from $1,00a5.25. The hog market is steady and without material change. We quote prime at $3,85a3,65, medium to good $5,00a3,25. Lake freights are steady, with engagements at Sc for corn and 90 fer wheat to Buffalo, and 141/10 for wheat to Oswego.
